

2010

California Lead Organizers Institute

For Labor and Community Organizers

UC BERKELEY
LABOR CENTER

2010 will present numerous exciting challenges for labor, community and political activists. Unions and community-based organizations will need skilled staff in order to be successful in tackling these issues. The 2010 California Lead Organizers Institute, a collaboration between the UC Berkeley Labor Center and the Center for Third World Organizing, is an opportunity to develop your organization's lead organizers.

The week-long training held in a relaxing retreat center in San Juan Bautista will feature workshops on:

Staff and Member Leadership Development • Debriefing and Training Techniques • Strategic Campaign Planning • Public Policy • Building Effective Community/Labor Coalitions

"... Unions serve as a forceful and effective voice for working people. The week long training provided through the Lead Organizers Institute reviews our history, and provides an intensive training and ongoing mentoring that our new leaders of today need. For those lucky enough to participate this type of mentorship is invaluable."

—Debra Chaplan, Director of Special Programs, State Building & Construction Trades Council

"The CLOI Program reinforced supervising skills that enable me to train, lead and organize staff, while fostering effective leadership."

—Evelin Montes, Collective SPACE—Los Angeles

Funding generously provided by The California Wellness Foundation.

FEBRUARY 15–19, 2010

Week-long training at St. Francis Retreat Center in San Juan Bautista, CA

Plus a follow-up regional meeting and end-of-program weekend review.

DEADLINE for applications
JANUARY 15, 2010

COST
Tuition is based on the annual budget of the applicant's organization:

*less than $250,000: $500
$250,000-$500,000: $700 more than $500,000: $900*

Please send inquiries to Bree Carlson (bree@ctwo.org or 213-625-1491) or Jun Chong (ucblaborcenter@gmail.com or 415-643-9050)

To download an application go to <http://laborcenter.berkeley.edu>

